

There is a land

Writer: Marlene pelt

Marlene Stafford Pelt Publishing/BMI

Stricken as a young boy, took a toll upon his life
As a man his arm laid useless, Hanging by his side
He wanted to be like other men, do the things they do
He said when I reach Heaven with both arms I will hug like you.

Her life she stared in darkness never seen the light of day
When asked why does she always wear a smile upon her face
I know one day he will call my name, gates will open wide
The first thing that my eyes will see Is Jesus by my side

A child was born into this world no sound within his ears
Mom and Dad they worried, because he would never hear
He learned the love of God by watching signs and lips of men
And the first words that his ears will hear is "Child you may enter in"

A young girl sets in a chair her legs she can not use
Her faith was stirred by the word the Preacher spoke to her
There is a land so bright and fair, nothing will compare
You will walk and you will run , wheelchair won't be there

Chorus:

There is a land, and in that land
We will all be in one accord, together we will stand
Before the lord, There will be no more
Broken hearts or wounded souls to enter through that door
When we reach that land

Bridge:

Many times we question, why does this have to be?
Trials, they come to them that's good sometimes we just don't see
But God has placed every life in his master plan
One day we will understand when Leads us by his hand

Chorus:

Into that Land, His Promise land
We will all be in one accord together we will stand
Before the Lord, there will be no more
Broken hearts or wounded souls to enter through that door
When we reach that land, His Promise land.... There is a Land.

D.O.C. 2016